To whom it may concern,

As an experienced educator with 40+ years in education as a classroom teacher, Special Education Specialist, Principal in Ontario and overseas (Dubai), and presently an Educational Consultant, I feel very capable of identifying a natural born teacher when I see one. This indeed is how I felt when I met Ashley Scott. It is certainly not every day that a young teacher impresses me so much as did Ashley. I had the opportunity to train her this fall in Tribes, a 24Hour workshop that teaches educators to create a safe community environment where students learn the importance of mutual respect, listening to each other and ultimately want to work together. From the beginning of the 24hour event, it was clear that Ashley already believed in and lived the Tribes Agreements.

I since have had the opportunity to visit Ashley at her current teaching assignment working with Primary/Junior students and she doubly impressed me with her classroom management, attention to detail and her wonderful positive rapport with her students. She has created a caring and safe classroom environment where students appear to genuinely like and respect their teacher. She truly models patience, respect and the listening skills she teaches. I am confident that Ashley would put her all into any teaching position and recommend her highly for a position in a school district.

Sincerely,

Donna Bennett
